Bishops Urge Major Changes By U.S. to Help Nation's Poor

By Kenneth A. Briggs New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — Calling for

"a new commitment to economic justice," a committee of Roman Catholic bishops has issued a first draft of a pastoral letter that proposes sweeping changes to help the

The bishops' 120-page letter on the U.S. economy, released Sun-day, asserts that while the nation can be proud of its achievements, there have been failures, "some of them massive and ugly," such as persistent hunger, homelessness and racial discrimination. "Most of all we are concerned how our economic decisions affect the poor," Archbishop Rembert G. Weakland of Milwaukee, chairman of the bishops' committee, said here Sunday at a news conference at which the document was made

"We find it a disgrace that 35 million Americans live below the poverty level and millions more hover just above it," he said. "We are appalled at the sad sight of extreme poverty elsewhere on this

In the draft of the letter the bishops said, "We believe that the level of inequality in income and wealth in our society and even more the bor should work together to plan inequality on the world scale today must be judged morally unaccept-

Many of the bishops' proposals seek a larger role for government in solving economic problems, a position that would appear to clash with the Reagan administration's drive to reduce the role of the state. The fundamental message of the bor practices."

• The direction of U.S. foreign policy, which under President Ronward the poor and policies aimed at aid Reagan has been shifting toward military programs, should re-emphasize basic human needs.

The "Pastoral Letter on Catholic Social Teaching and the U.S. Econmajor new policy commitment" to omy" was prepared over four years by the five-member committee, which was appointed by the leadership of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

The document, considered one of the most significant pastoral letters in the history of the American The social and economic prob-church hierarchy, is to be discussed by the nation's 280 bishops at their annual meeting this week in Washchannels "resources away from the ington and revised in the coming to be voted on by the bishops at their meeting next year.

In the document, the bishops describe their purpose as evaluating U.S. economic policies in terms of the "profoundly human, and therefore moral" issues that underlie

"Bishops do not approach economic questions as experts in eco-nomics," Archbishop Weakland said at the news conference, "but, using the best evidence and data in that field, they reflect as teachers and pastors on the effects, both good and bad, that the economy has on people."

To the consternation of some Catholics who anticipated the bishops' statement as a strong indictment of many Reagan administration social policies, the bishops decided last year to issue the first draft after the presidential election to keep their views from becoming a factor in the campaign.

Following the procedure used recently in other pastoral letters, including the document last year condemning nuclear war, the bishops make a distinction in the letter on the economy between binding moral principles that carry the church's highest authority and practical strategies about which Catholics may legitimately disagree.

Many of the principles, such as the imperative to abolish poverty, have been considered essential teachings of the church.

The bishops' committee drew upon the Bible, theology and papal pronouncements to support the principle, fundamental to the document, that special concern for the poor should govern all economic considerations

Related principles, supported by nearly a century of Catholic social teaching include the primacy of labor over capital and the need to place economic resources first at the service of the common good rather than toward the production Judging the United States by those standards, the bishops said that despite great progress in some areas, "we know full well that there have been failures, some of them massive and ugly."

Part of the problem, the letter said, are attitudes of selfishness (Continued on Page 3, Col. 1)

LONDON — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, in a speech Monday night, praised President Ronald Reagan's re-election and urged a resumption of East-West negotiations, particularly to head off an arms race in space.

But in the last week, as the latest negotiations to end the walkout collapsed and as the state-run National Coal Board offered a £1,400 ($1,764) package of pre-Christmas wages and bonuses, there has been the most significant drift back to work thus far among the strikers.

The board said that 1,900 strikers reported back to work Monday, in contrast to the 2,100 who returned all of last week.

The board said that almost 56,000 miners were working. Of 174 mines, the board said 56 are producing some coal, 45 have working miners but no production and 73 remain on strike.

The board's figures could not be independently verified, and Arthur Scargill, the leader of the National Union of Mineworkers, said only about 40,000 miners were working. "The coal board's policy of trying to bribe miners to return to work, using as an inducement mon-ey already owed to them, is not succeeding," he said. Although the number of miners coming back is a fraction of those on strike, there seemed to be little doubt here that the drift back to

Thai General Withdraws Demands

BANGKOK (UPI) - Thailand's top military commander withdrew his demand for a cabinet reshuffle Monday, apparently ending a political confrontation with Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanonda. General Arthit Kamlang-Ek said no confrontation existed between the military and cus attention on the condition of blacks in the white-ruled republic, primarily poor living conditions in their crowded townships. Reports of a confrontation stemmed from misunderstandings and speculation on the part of others, General Arthit said. He said he had wanted the monetary policy readjusted to help the poor but did not seek the removal of any cabinet members. If monetary changes can be made without a reshuffle, he said, that is a good sign.

The conciliatory tone was in contrast to an emotional speech by General Arthit last week when the Prem government devalued the currency by 17.4 percent against the dollar. General Arthit demanded a rollback of the devaluation and a cabinet reshuffle.

Polish Dissidents Form Rights Group

WARSAW (Reuters) — Fourteen Poles, including four of the country's best-known dissident intellectuals, announced the formation Monday of a human rights group in response to the murder of an opposition

They said their group, called "The Citizens' Committee Against Vio-lence," would work in Warsaw, issuing information on any cases of police brutality and offering legal help to victims of alleged persecution.

The committee is the third human rights group formed in Poland since the priest, Jerzy Popieluszko, was kidnapped and murdered last month. The others are in the southern cities of Krakow and Wrocław. The Warsaw group includes Anka Kowalska, Edward Lipinski, Jan Jozef Lipski and Janusz Onyszkiewicz, who are all known dissidents.

LUXEMBOURG - Grand Duke Jean of Luxembourg, the head of state of what may be Europe's most unabashedly pro-American country, will have an opportunity to demonstrate his country's good will in his first official visit to the United States, which began Monday.

Luxembourg's pro-Americanism is partly a matter of history. "We were liberated by the Americans in two world wars, the second time when we were the only conquered country incorporated into the Nazi Reich," said Christian Calmes, the marshal of the grand duke's court.

Martin Luther King Sr. Is Dead at 84 in Atlanta

By Peter Kerr New York Times Service
NEW YORK — The Reverend Martin Linher King Sr., 84, for decades one of the South's most influential black clergymen and the father of the slain civil rights leader who bore his name, died of a heart attack Sunday in Atlanta.

For 44 years, Mr. King served as pastor of the Ebenezer Baptist Thurch, one of the South's leading black congregations, and he remained a major force in the civic life of Atlanta after retiring.

Although he was a pioneer leader in Atlanta civil rights battles, the national influence of Daddy King as he was called, was through his

In the years after Martin Luther King Jr. was assassinated in 1968, Mr. King often made public ap-pearances in which he invoked the memory of his son with Biblical imagery and tolling cadences, as well as his concern for the poor.

"God grant that the president emember always the least," Mr. King declared at the manguration ceremony in 1977 for President Jimmy Carter, whom he strongly supported. "There will always be more of them than the rest." In many ways the life of Mr. King was an American success story. He rose from the poverty of black rural life in turn-of-the-century Georgia to become an early winner who helped inspire the the South since the Civil War.

As a member of the Social Action Committee of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, he helped win a legal battle to equalize the salaries of black and white teachers in Atlanta. He also fought for desegregation and challenged restrictions on voting rights.

But his life was marked by tragedy. In 1969, one year after Martin Luther King Jr. was struck down by an assassin's bullet, Mr. King's only other son, the Reverend A.D. King, 38, of a Baptist church in Louisville, Kentucky, drowned in 3 swimming pool accident. Five years later. Mr. King's wife, Alber-12 W. In more than four decades as a writer and editor on fashion and society, Miss Sheppard became known for her breezy style, a personalized approach to fashion and her ability to spot trends.

This talent transcended the fact that she had poor eyesight and never wore glasses. She often relied on the person sitting beside her at fashion shows to describe what was being shown.

York Herald Tribune in 1940, covering home furnishings, beauty and fashion, and became fashion editor in 1947. In 1949, she started a daily woman's page and in 1956 began to write a column, "Inside Fashion," that made her famous in the fashion world. It became required reading in the fashion business.

Geraldine Stutz, president of Henri Bendel and a longtime friend of Miss Sheppard, said: "'Inside Fashion' was an enormous revelation. Up until then, fashion reportage was description of clothes. Eugenia was fascinated by fashion and began to talk about the people who made the clothes and the people who wore the clothes. She personalized (ashion, It was the begin-

When the Tribune became the World Journal Tribune in 1966, she went along as women's editor. When that paper folded, she reported on Paris fashion for the International Herald Tribune, and her column also appeared in Wom-en's Wear Daily. In 1968 she was named society editor of The New York Post.

In her later years she wrote a syndicated column for Publishers Hall called "Around the Town." After she entered the hospital two weeks ago, she continued writing her column with the help of her assistant, Amy Penn.

Tiny but Powerful

Hebe Dorsey of the International Herald Tribune reported from Paris: When Eugenia Sheppard took her seat at a Paris fashion show, her tiny frame not quite filling her chair and her periwinkle blue eyes shining under blond curls, she looked like an innocent Dresden doll. Nor did she check notes As a matter of fact, she hardly talked before, during or after a fashion show.

When she first came to Paris, she was an unknown and as such she was able to write what she wanted without being bound by personal or professional ties. This produced as pure fashion copy as existed.

She believed in working hard and playing hard. She loved a party and did not spend hours getting ready for it. After the copy was sent, she simply put on an evening dress and went on living. One day, she rushed so much she put on two different shoes —a beige one and a pink one — noticed it at a party, aughed and went on dancing

She was often invited to dinner by the Duke and Duchess of Windsor. After the duke died, the duchess once asked her for tea. When she came back, her only remark was: "It was very sad. All the duchess wanted to talk about was

Paris couturiers paid tribute to Miss Sheppard. "She was a great friend, sincere and faithful. She devoted her life to fashion writing with truth and humanity," said Pierre Cardin.

Customized Coffins Symbolize Life Of Deceased in Sculpture and Paint

By Clifford D. May New York Times Service TESHI, Ghana - In this West African nation, as elsewhere, there are people who know how to make chiefly lineage, the ceremonies can last a month or more. The problem is that such occasions are costly affairs, and Ghana once among the wealthiest and most developed countries in Africa, has for years been growing poorer. The dispute in Ghana over the price of dying began to heat up recently when the government, as part of its economic austerity drive, appointed a commission to investigate funeral expenses and see whether something could be done to modify a custom that many view as a waste of the average family's the radio a few times a day. Whatever other savings the governmental commission may evenmally recommend or Ghanaians may contemplate, Mr. Quaye says he is confident his business will continue to prosper. Some clients are so enamored of his creations, he said, that they will make their purchase long before they actually require it. The coffin can then be kept in the living room as an art object and, presumably, as a conversation piece. In Mr. Moxon's view, a person may also find it reassuring to be able to look over and see the Mercedes that he will be driving into eternity. The craftsmen of Teshi boast that they can build any design a client might request. Not long ago, a woman who sold turtle meat was ied in a colossal receiver.

For a woman who had given birth to many children, a coffin of a mother hen was built along with 13 chicks. A single chick was placed at a distance from the rest, representing a child who had died in infancy. There was one coffin, however that seemed puzzling. It took the

Buy an industry-standard personal computer from a world leader in communications, and you get something extra – the ITT XTRA.

A professional communicator specifically designed to grow with your every computing and communications requirement.

ALL THE WORLD'S SOFTWARE

It runs the world's best-selling software, and in local language versions, so you'll always have the programs you need.

Database, spreadsheets, graphics, word processing - you name it, the ITT XTRA takes it all in its stride.

And each of the four models in the range communicates in your language across the entire spectrum of business applications.

THE INS AND OUTS OF GOOD DESIGN

The ITT XTRA is a professional personal computer. Since it's made by ITT, that's no surprise.

The tilting, swivelling monitor can be adjusted to suit your working position exactly. It takes up the minimum of desk space - you don't have to sit it on a bulky box of electronics.

And there's a choice of monitors green, amber or colour - all with highresolution, glare and smudge-resistant screens. While the compact ergonomically designed keyboard, with sculptured keys and home row indicators, is a pleasure to use.

THE WORLD AT YOUR KEYBOARD

You become more productive, quicker, with the ITT XTRA.

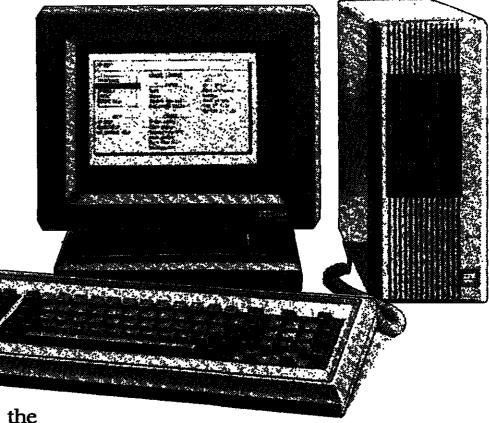

And because it's a professional communicator rather than just another personal computer, you'll never have to keep that extra output to yourself.

The built-in communications and five expansion slots mean direct access to other micros, mainframes and networks; plus worldwide electronic mail, access to Videotex systems, such as Prestel, and, in the near future, simultaneous voice and data transmissions.

So while conventional personal computers come and go, the ITT XTRA, a professional communicator, is here to stay. Which would you rather have - a conventional personal computer, or a system that offers something extra?

With the way business communications are developing, it pays to go for the extra.

ITT XTRA, the professional communicator.

A 'Vote' in South Africa

While Americans were voting last Tuesday, so, in the indirect fashion permitted them, were many South African blacks. They lack a franchise and any political mechanism for expressing their interests or communicating their views; the new South African constitution locks them out more definitely than ever. But they remain in a position to make a powerful political statement by withholding the one thing that the ruling white minority most val-ues them for: their labor. Hundreds of thousands of blacks went on strike, bringing South Africa's industrial heartland to a near standstill, according to news reports. It was de-still, according to news reports. It was described as the biggest political strike by blacks in the country's history.

It is hard to imagine the desperation and courage it takes for blacks to go on strike in what is for them a highly organized police state. They face a police force that is the arm of white privilege. By striking, they risk loss of their jobs in the cities where the jobs are and the likelihood of banishment to the barren jobless "homelands." In addition to the expected beatings, arrests and killings last week, one state-owned oil-from-coal plant known as Sasol simply fired 6,000 workers, 90 percent of its black work force. South Africa's white rulers have gone to great lengths to ensure that what protests do take place against the apartheid system do not spill over into the work place. In the latest strike, the authorities refused to listen to or credit the strikers' assorted political and economic grievances. The protest was attributed to "instigators, arsonists and radicals," as the home affairs minister put it.

Nonetheless the strike went on. Its results are to be measured less in terms of concessions won - these are bound to be minimal - than in terms of increased solidarity among those who took part. The official South African strategy is to fragment the black majority, by setting up separate homelands and by restricting organizational and even social links. But the few black organizations that have been permitted, including the United Democratic Front and black trade unions, made this strike happen. The inevitable reprisals further isolate the government from foreigners it would like to cultivate and, more important, from the blacks, whom it desperately needs to reconcile.

Baby Fae: A Key Question

The baboon heart transplanted into Baby Fae opens a new and so far uncertain avenue of medicine. It provokes the usual train of questions, clouded in this case by unusual maladroitness at the Loma Linda University Medical Center in presenting full information.

Leonard Bailey, the surgeon, says he prepared for such an experiment by doing crossspecies transplants in animals for seven years. Though none lived more than six months, he persuaded the hospital's ethics committee that he had established a credible basis for taking the operation to humans.

The ethics committee should probably have asked Dr. Bailey to ensure that no human heart was available for his patient. It seems not to have done so, but that is a minor lapse. It was because infant hearts are so rarely available that Dr. Bailey looked to baboon hearts to remedy the defect he is treating.

Having found a patient with hypoplastic heart, a fatal inborn defect in which the heart has only three instead of four chambers, Dr. Bailey then obtained the parents' informed consent. Because the hospital refuses to release the consent form, it is unclear how fully the parents were informed of an alternative treatment in which the hypoplastic heart is reconstructed surgically. But since that treatment, too, is experimental, the point again is minor. If ethics committee approval and informed consent were properly obtained, Dr. Bailey had every right to proceed with his experiment. It would have been reassuring if articles about the underlying animal experiments had been published in scientific journals, not rejected as Dr. Bailey complains. But many important novel ideas have been rejected by reputable journals. If the experiment had been funded by the National Institutes of Health, and therefore approved by a group of fellow experts, that would have been another seal of approval. But Dr. Bailey can hardly be faulted for raising private funds for his research.

Is there a chance that the baboon heart transplant will lead to a useful technique? Unlike the mechanical heart inserted into Barney Clark, the baboon heart could allow Baby Fae to lead a normal life. She may have to endure repeated episodes of rejection, but the chance of success makes the risk worth taking. Even if this experiment fails, it could prompt a wider look at the use of animal hearts to treat other heart defects, particularly if the drugs used to prevent rejection prove successful. The deeper issue is whether it is wise to develop surgical procedures of such extraordinary expense.

Baby Fae's heart transplant may cost $1 million. Loma Linda University Medical Center is paying this time, but it will be hard to deny the operation, if successful, to parents of other Baby Faes, about one in every 12,000 births. That will be a heavy drain on resources that almost certainly would save more infants' lives if spent on preventive measures. Like Barney Clark, Baby Fae is the subject of intense public interest because of the extreme novelty of all forms of heart transplant. But these heroics, because of their expense, are bound to be a mixed blessing. New ways of curing heart disease are worth a cheer. New ways of preventing it are worth three.

The Troubles in Chile

A state of siege in Chile? Again? There is a coalitions, to compromise and to fence off the feeling that a familiar and tragic script is being Communist and fascist extremes. It is almost endured it the last time. General Augusto Pinochet, who conducted the coup of September 1973, has reacted to months of widespread popular unrest and some terrorist violence not. as he should have done, by quickening the absurdly slow political liberalization on which he had embarked, but by closing it off. His long-threatened "hard hand" has produced a series of arrests, the muzzling of the press, and the intimidation of the political parties. The elections the general has been promising for some time appear even more remote.

What is wrong in Chile? Why is it one of the few Latin American countries, of the many that lapsed into military rule in the last generation, to show itself incapable of sustaining a democratic revival? Two broad explanations are available. One goes to the personal style of General Pinochet and emphasizes his combination of a hunger for power and an evident talent for adroit maneuver, which kept him the master of Chilean politics throughout the time he allowed liberalization to unfold.

The other explanation goes to the political culture of Chile. There is a painful lack of capacity among the parties to make serious were waiting to resume the political conflict that was raging, out of control, when the Pinochet coup broke it off 11 years ago. The result now is a renewed state of siege that has provoked many loud, bitter and ineffective complaints, and new claims by General Pinochet that he has saved the country from violence and anarchy.

This time, though, one element of interest to Americans is different. A myth of American responsibility for the collapse of Chilean democracy spread in the 1970s. We say myth because the ever-expanding record makes it clear that Chileans were the architects of their own disaster, and the U.S. role was, though often unwise and unhelpful, finally peripheral. But the Reagan administration has moved American policy clearly away from the personalism and the distrust of democracy represented by General Pinochet, although there was some backsliding recently when the State Department could not bring itself to condemn the reimposition of a state of siege. In any event, the policy of supporting a return to democracy

Other Opinion

Living With Nicaragua

Is Nicaragua destined to become a fullfledged Communist state pledged to subversion in the interests of Soviet expansion, and a threat to the North Atlantic alliance's flank? So long as there is any hope that Nicaragna might accept some modus vivendi, it is unlikely that American opinion would countenance major escalation of pressures against Nicaraqua tantamount to war. Yet informed opinion has been moving toward the view that Nicaragua may have passed the point of no return. It is serving as the rear echelon and supply center for Salvadoran Communist rebels. What does a U.S. administration do if it fears that its position in Central America is under threat? - The Daily Telegraph (London).

FROM OUR NOV. 13 PAGES, 75 AND 50 YEARS AGO

1909: Coal Strike Grows in Australia SYDNEY - The coal strike is assuming more serious proportions. The proprietors of the western collieries will not confer with the men, declaring that no grievances exist. Agents are hastening the despatch of ships in view of the waterside workers' declaration that they may join the strike [on Nov. 16] and consequently close the port. The post-office is endeavoring to purchase coal at $15 a ton. The shops at Newcastle have stopped giving credit to the strikers. The northern strikers have provided for the picketing of all collieries, and arrangements have been made for the establishment of commissary departments in every district. The northern proprietors will not consent to a conference until the strikers resume work.

1934: Marconi on Television's Limits LONDON - Television will never assume the same importance in the world of entertainment that radio broadcasting possesses today, in the opinion of Marchese Marconi, now in England. It will not be long, however, Marconi said, before audiences in theaters will see performances from the other side of the Atlantic flashed before their eyes. It is likely. Marconi thinks, that these showings will be merely an adjunct to radio broadcasting. "Television," he says, "possesses one technical disadvantage in that it takes up a broader band of waves in the ether than radio and is more likely to experience outside interference." At present, Marconi is experimenting on wire control of ships. His tryouts are being held in Venice.

The Invisible 40 Million: America's Poor

WASHINGTON — The presidential elec-tion results revealed an important fact about the United States that ought to be noted before we rush into the Reagan second term and its politics of contentment.

The United States is deeply divided along class lines. According to an ABC News exit poll, Americans earning more than $30,000 a year favored President Reagan over Walter Mondale by more than 2-to-1. But those earning less than $10,000 a year favored Mr. Mondale by landslide proportions. The Democrats were not the only losers on Tuesday; society's losers lost, too

Who are those people living in families with carnings of less than $10,000 a year — that is, $192 a week, before taxes? Surely they constitute only a small part of the population?

No. More than 40 million Americans live in families with incomes of less than $10,000 a year. They are part of an America you did not see in those feel-good Reagan ads, an America of poverty and near-poverty that is amazingly large. In today's United States, one out of every four children lives in poverty. That is not a typographchildren lives in poverty. That is not a typographical error; one in four. Nearly half the workingage adult black men in the country—46 percent—do not have jobs, when the homeless and totally discouraged are added to the conventional "unemployed." The poorest 40 percent of the population (that is, the poorest 100 million Americans) has been earning a steadily declining slice of the national economic pie in recent years, while the wealthy classes have been getting much fatter slices. That bottom 40 percent has actually fatter slices. That bottom 40 percent has actually suffered declining real income over the last five years. The country really has been changing: the poor have been getting poorer, the rich richer. The fact that things have been getting worse so

By Robert G. Kaiser

This is the first of two articles.

totally contradicts the mood of the country that we tend to shrug it off. The Republicans ignored America's losers this fall; the Democrats, whose past efforts to "solve" the poverty problem came a cropper, made no new proposals. But the situa-

a cropper, made no new proposals. But the situation is getting worse. In 1980 and 1981, 43 percent of black high school graduates in America went on to some kind of college. In 1982 the number fell to 36.4 percent.

In recent years, the number of Americans in serious financial straits has grown appreciably. It even grew in 1983, when the economy began to boom after the recent recession. This year it will fall as the recovery continues — but only slightly, despite predictions to the contrary.

"I am absolutely confident that the poverty rate is going to decline dramatically for 1983," David Stockman told a congressional committee a year ago. The director of the Office of Management and Budget had to eat those words. When ment and Budget had to eat those words. When ment and Budget had to ear those words. When the figures for 1983 came out in August, they showed that 900,000 people had joined the officially poor, bringing the total to 35.3 million.

The "poverty rate"—the percentage of Americans below the government's poverty line—rose two-tenths of a point to 15.2 percent in 1983.
As recently as 1979 the rate was 11.7 percent. Put another way, the number of poor people grew by 8.4 million from 1979 to 1983, a number equal to the population of Sweden.

But those officially designated poor are hardly the only Americans who have a tough time mak-ing ends meet. The official standard says that a family of four is poor if its total income was less than $10,178 for the year. But according to another government figure - one that the Bureau of Labor Statistics stopped publishing in 1981 — an urban family of four needed $15,323 that year to finance a "low" living standard.

The official poverty line was set arbitrarily some 20 years ago at three times the amount a family spends on food — but not for a normal diet. The government picked an "economy" diet of admittedly inadequate nutritional value as the basis for the standard. A healthy "low-cost" diet would have cost about 20 percent more, and would have raised the poverty line.

If that higher standard were in effect, the number of officially poor would be about 45 million — nearly one fifth of all Americans.

Nevertheless, most Americans are concerned not about their countrymen who are having a hard time, but about those who they think are taking advantage of the system. A recent CBS-New York Times poll found that, when asked who they warry about most, families getting too little welfare or families getting too much wel-fare, a 2-to-1 majority said it worries most about those getting "too much."

Among black respondents, revealingly, the numbers are the reverse: By 2-1, blacks worry most about those getting too little help.

The CBS-New York Times exit poll conducted last Tuesday asked voters if they thought government spending for the poor should be increased. decreased or kept at current levels. Forty percent of those surveyed said the government should spend more, but 39 percent said the current level was enough, and 15 percent said it was too high.

Now, Time To Fill the Empty Stage

By James Reston

WASHINGTON — There is now a pause for rejoicing and reflection in the Reagan administration. The president has taken a well-deserved rest at his California ranch. Democrats are nursing the wounds of their third defeat in four presidential elections, and carpenters are building the stage on the east side of the majestic Capitol Building for the inauguration ceremony.

For the moment, it is an empty stage, a platform of raw yellow lum-ber still under construction. But on Jan. 21 it will be draped in the colors of the flag, alive with the sound of music and the murmurs of the crowd. awaiting the oath of office and the voice of the president.

What will he say about the meaning of his spectacular victory? Will he see it as a mandate to continue his policies of the past, or as an opportunity to define his vision of the future? Beginning with his inauguration speech and going on to his State of the Union address and the first budget of his second term, Mr. Reagan

About his objectives of peace and prosperity there is no doubt. But on changed in the balance of political the means to these ends, he faces in the new Congress, in the nation and in the world a clash of contradictory opinions dogmatically held and often acted upon with fanatic violence.

"four more years" to deal effectively with his domestic and foreign prob-lems. It is in the first year, when the influence of his victory will be at its height, that he will have the best chance of dealing with his two most pressing problems. They are the control of the nuclear arms race and the control of the national budget, with its alarming fiscal and trade deficits. Two facts illustrate the importance of time in dealing with these problems.

First, the production of nuclear weapons in the United States and in the Soviet Union does not wait for the election returns. Every day these governments produce at least four or five new nuclear weapons.

Second, the interest on the mounting U.S. national debt has increased

What to Do When the Honeymoon Ends

WASHINGTON — As the dust settles and Democrats settle down to the chore of arguing that President Reagan was denied a mandate because he was denied the District of Columbia and his opponent's home state, the political system is slipping into what is called the "honeymoon" period, which lasts until the winner of an election claims a mandate to do something.

Alexander Woollcott said that reading the last chapters of "The Brothers Karamazov" always "chokes me up and fills me with a love of mankind which sometimes lasts till noon of the following day."

Being a lame duck makes the chief executive less fearsome, and fear is what makes Washington work - well, O.K., 97 percent fear and 3 percent devotion.

Repeal of the War Powers Act. It is unwieldy, unclear and clearly uncon-stitutional as a derogation of the responsibilities of the commander in chief vested in the presidency and exercised by most occupants of that office. No president has yet quite complied with the Act. Repeal would be the straightforward approach.

Abolition of the Federal Election Commission and all limits on camcommission and all anits on cam-paign spending and giving. The com-mission is a bureaucracy that exists to enforce limits on spending, which are limits on the quantity of political speech. Fortunately, it fails to do that. The "quarantining" of Nicaragua.
This was the good idea from the Mondale campaign. I do not know precisely what the Democratic candidate meant by it, but he now has the spare time to explain it. Mr. Reagan could embrace the idea as an example of bipartisanship. What fun. Repeal of the law pertaining to special prosecutors. Too often a special prosecutor is used as a means of harassing officials of the executive branch (for example, Hamilton Jor-dan and Edwin Meese). Besides, the law probably is unconstitutional. It establishes a law-enforcement function outside the president's control. although the Constitution vests in the president the duty to see that the laws are faithfully executed.

Repeal of the American League's designated-hitter rule. I have hitherto addressed the president sharply about this and my patience is not inexhaustible. Conservatism means keeping your cotton-pickin' hands off fundamentals. Reformers messed with baseball's fundamentals. Today's conservatives are promiscuous amenders of the Constitution. Surely they can see the need to restore baseball to its pristine condition.

The Priest, The Church The General

By Leopold Unger

B RUSSELS — Father Jerzy Po-pieluszko was not the first Polish priest to die in the line of duty. Thou-sands of priests died in deportation during czarist times and under Bol-shevik rule as well as in Nazi concentration camps. But Father Popie-luszko is the first Polish priest to have been killed by Poles, not foreigners.

The murder was worse than a crime, it was a blunder. And it added a national dimension and a political symbolism to what would have been a simple human drama.

One man's death — even that of the most popular of men — is not enough, however, to bring about a sudden fundamental change in the sunden fundamental change in the nature of a political system.

The investigation of the priest's murder, therefore, is being carried out by the same Interior Ministry that has protected civil servants of the ministry believed to have killed a student and a farmer.

The investigation is being contudent and a farmer.

The investigation is being supervised by the same prosecutor who recently opened an inquiry into the activities of Father Popieluszko ander the charge of subversion.

The church and the regime have chosen caution for now, and have reached some sort of tacit alliance, so as not to fall into the trap laid by the killers and the men behind them They want to avoid a confrontation that they may not be able to control. A few hours after Father Popie-luszko's funeral, General Wojciech Jaruzelski conferred in Warsaw with his special envoy to the Vatican, Jerzy Kuberski. According to reliable sources, Mr. Kuberski returned to the Vatican with a letter from the Polish leader to Pope John Paul II. Leaders of the Polish church will hold an extraordinary meeting later this month to discuss the murder of Father Popietuszko. Afterward, on Nov. 26, Cardinal Jozef Glemp will travel to Rome to confer with the pope. The priest's murder will unquestionably be on their agenda.

The circumstances surrounding Father Popieluszko's death will clearly affect the future relationship be ween Poland and its church.

Before the assassination, relations between the church and the state were practically nonexistent. A meeting scheduled between General Jaruzeiski and Cardinal Glemp for Nov. 29 was canceled by the government without explanation. Negotiations on the principal issues separating the two major powers of the nation were at a standstill. Nothing was being done about the private agricultural assistance fund, nor about the 22 political prisoners excluded from the July amnesty of 652 others.

The regime's attacks against the church had increased. A former minister responsible for relations between government and church lashed out at the pope in the government tool of "American hegemony" and of Bonn's "pan-Germanism. Behind all this lies the fundamental debate on the role of the church in a Communist state. What the regime appears to be proposing is the Byzantine-Russian model of a church minding its own business while re-maining obedient to its political overseers. That model, however, is foreign to the Polish Catholic tradition and to the way Poles see the church today. Father Popieluszko was the living symbol of this contradiction. His uncompromising attitude in supporting Solidarity's principles embarrassed even Cardinal Glemp. And if the primate rejected the regime's demand that he discipline the priest, the cardinal, nevertheless, suggested that Father Popieluszko request a scholarship to study in Rome.

The question now is who will be the next victim of Poland's special execution squads. More victims are inevitable; provocation is an integral part of recent Polish history.
Pogroms unleashed by the political police in 1946 left at least 34 victims in the city of Kielce among the Jewish survivors of Nazi death camps. In 1968, students were beaten by "groups of angry patriotic workers" to forestall a "Zionist plot" in Po-land. What lay behind this brutality was an attempt to create riots that would have led to the downfall of the ruling team of Wladyslaw Gomulka to make room for the fascist organizations supporting the infamous General Micczyslaw Moczar. General Jaruzelski has accepted the Politburo's "recommendation" that he personally supervise the activities of the Interior Ministry and investigate the security services.

One of his predecessors promised the same thing after Stalin died in 1953. Another made the same sort of vow after the 1956 workers' rebellion of Poznan. Yet another made similar statements after the 1970 revolt. None has kept his word. And General Jaruzelski will not be the first.

Election Special What An Exclusive

Encore.

Not even Hollywood could have given Ronald Reagan a more satisfactory script: two consecutive landslides, a resounding affirmation of the way he played his most challenging role.

How it all came about is the subject of an extraordinary special election issue of TIME Magazine available now.

This is the most comprehensive election issue that any newsmagazine has ever published.

It is a finely detailed overview that includes an exclusive interview with President Reagan, and an exclusive appraisal of the election's impact by America's foremost president-watcher, Pulitzer Prize-winning author Theodore H. White.

Also in this issue—

- A fascinating dissection of the election and how particular campaign strategies worked in different regions with different demographic groups.
- An examination of how Labor voted, and why.
- An appraisal of a prospective candidate for '88, George Bush.
- A look at what Geraldine Ferraro achieved.
- What lessons the Democrats learned from their defeat, and how they can profit from them.
- A gallery of arresting campaign photographs. Definitive election coverage, as only TIME could do it. The kind of journalism that 31 million readers around the world look for every week.

EW YORK - One of the startling developments in the financial-futures markets this year has been the shriveling of trading activity in the domestic 90-day bank certificates of deposit and the concomitant surge in volume of Eurodollar futures. Both futures are traded on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

In October, for example, CD volume shrank to 22,900 contracts, from 78,300 in October 1983 and the 1984 high of 187,700, posted in May. Meanwhile, trading in 90-day Eurodollar futures soared to a record 491,000 contracts last month, from 81,300 in October 1983

Last week, when the election sparked heavy trading in all financial futures, CD volume was 5,300 contracts, compared with the 137,000 Eurodollar futures traded. The question is "why?" One answer is that since

The more volatile the

May, when the Continental Illinois Bank's troubles came to light, more banks have found it easier to tap the Eurodollar market for funds than domestic investors," said one Chicago financial-futures trader.

"The European market has been easy to tap because it is awash with dollars generated by our worsening trade deficit," he added. "Althoughlinterest rates on all short-term instruments have fallen about 200 basis points in the last two months. European and other foreign investors still favor the safety of dollar investments, especially those they can hedge in the futures markets here and in London and Singapore."

B UT another surprising development in the financial-futures markets can be linked directly to changes in the interest-rate structure over the past year. That development was the increase in volume in the previously lackluster market in 6.5-to 10-year Treasury note futures on the Chicago

In October, Treasury-note volume jumped to 149,200 contracts, up from 57,700 in October 1983. For the first 10 months, the volume has climbed to 1.3 million, from 674,000 a year ago. Meanwhile, Treasury-bond futures continue to be the most actively traded of all futures, with the volume soaring last month to 2.9 million contracts, from 1.8 million in October 1983.

"The T-note futures have become active because the interest yield curve between the maturities in that sector and the long end of the bond market have been more or less equal for quite some time," one investment banker in New York explained. Treasury note and bond yields have both been fairly flat at roughly 11%

Another investment banker cited the "volatility index," which is becoming a major factor in the fixed-income securities market, as contributing to the shifts in financial-futures trading activity. Each trading house has its own index of price volatility upon which it determines the cash margins required of its trading partners or investor clients. The more volatile the market or the particular maturity sector, the higher the cash margin required. Also, the more volatile a market, the greater the activity in the corresponding futures.

Because the long end of the bond market - the 20- to 30-year maturities --- is more volatile, more institutional money managers have used the bond futures for hedging.

Volatility is important to measure because a change of one percentage point in the yield of a long-term bond is equal to a price change of $70 for each $1,000 of face value. In comparison,

Firm to Supply Engines, Vans

By Warren Getler International Herald Tribune
WOLFSBURG, West Germany Volkswagenwerk AG signed a 600-million Deutsche mark ($204million) agreement with East Germany on Monday to provide autoengine assembly equipment and light commercial vans, a VW

The spokesman, Ortwin Witzel, said the contract differs little from a tentative agreement reached in February between the West Ger-man automaker and Industrie Anlagen Import, an East German state company. Under that agree-ment, VW was to supply the assem-bly equipment and several thousand VW vans to East Germany for five years beginning in 1988.

Signing of the agreement marks Volkswagen's first major foothold in Eastern Europe and occurs one month after VW signed with China the first joint venture agreement for passenger car production in China.

Economics Minister Martin Bangemann of West Germany said in a statement that he "welcomed" VW's signing of the accord, which would run from 1989 to 1993, inclusive. Mr. Bangemann said the agreement would likely provide new impulses" to West German capital investment in East Germany, which has declined in recent years, and would help create fur-ther opportunities for joint ventures between enterprises in West Germany and East Germany.

Mr. Witzel said details about financing of the agreement and the site of the East German facility would not be available until at least

The tentative agreement announced by VW in February called for delivery to the East German government of plant equipment designed for the assembly of 286,000 to 1.3-liter engines annually, of which 100,000 would be shipped back to West Germany for final assembly and would serve as the form of East German payment for institutions - pension fund man-

Zanussi Is Key to Electrolux Growth

By Barnaby J. Feder
New York Times Service
STOCKHOLM — In its 1983
annual report published last May, Electrolux AB, the Swedish appliance maker, said that it hoped to build a strong position in several more countries during the next few years, probably by acquiring companies.

At that time, Electrolux was several months into negotiating a transaction that could accomplish its expansion goal with just one leap, the takeover of Zanussi SpA of Italy. The financially troubled Italian company is estimated to have 12 to 13 percent of the European market for white goods such as refrigerators and clothes washers.

Zanussi, Italy's second-largest private-sector company, after the auto maker Fiat SpA, effec-tively bankrupted itself by ex-consumer electronics and pre-fabricated housing. But its strength in southern Europe in general, and in goods such as washers in particular, made it a potentially ideal partner for Electrolux. Where Electrolux is strong, Zanussi is weak, and vice versa, the Swedish company said in a recent newsletter. The plan would require Electrolux to invest about $106 million, half through buying shares that would give it 49 percent of Zanussi and half in debentures that could eventually be converted to stock to give it a 75-percent Acquiring Zanussi would make Electrolux about 25 percent larger. The purchase would also increase home appliances

Big Institutions Forcing a Drop in Wall Street Commissions

By Michael Blumstein New York Times Service

NEW YORK - Big institutions, dominant factor in stock trading, are forcing down the commissions they pay to securities firms. The drop has sparked fears of another blow to Wall Street profits, and could ultimately lead to a further restructuring of the industry. In recent weeks, the fear on Wall Street has been that institutional commissions could soon plummet to as low as a nickel a share.

Saudis Cut Production Of Crude Oil

NICOSIA - Saudi Arabia has cut oil production below four million barrels per day in a bid to raise prices to official OPEC levels and is prepared to cut output even further, the Middle East Economic Survey reported Monday.

Quoting an authoritative Saudi oil source, the newsletter said that Saudi Arabia's output was below its quota of 4.35 million barrels per day under the new ceiling of 16 million barrels per day set by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

The Saudi source also was quoted as saying "the production cutback is a flexible instrument, and it is to be operated on a weekly basis." The petroleum industry newsletter, based in Nicosia, has close ties to Saudi Arabia, OPEC's largest producer.

The fact that we have reduced our production to below four million barrels per day is a reflection of our determination to ensure the success of the OPEC effort to restabilize the market and push up prices to the OPEC official levels," a Saudi Arabian source told the oil publication, according to United Press International. "If necessary," the source added, "we would be prepared to cut production even further to achieve this aim."]

Meanwhile, Petroleum Intelligence Weekly estimated in a report released Monday that OPEC oil production grew to some 16.6 million to 17.0 million barrels per day in October before the group agreed to cut its quota to 16 million barrels per day, Reuters reported from New York.

PIW said non-OPEC, non-Communist oil production rose to 21.7 million barrels per day in Septem-ber from 21.5 million barrels per day in August on increases in U.S. North Sea and Mexican output. ■ OPEC Meeting Denied OPEC on Monday denied knowledge of a consultative meeting planned for later this month, The Associated Press reported from OPEC headquarters in Vienna. Saudi Arabia's state-owned radio station had reported such a meeting was planned. An OPEC official said the organization's regular meeting still was scheduled for Dec. 19 in Geneva.

Hong Kong Tries to Keep Taxes Low

By Dinah Lee

HONG KONG - Government and business officials are searching for solutions to the inevitable changes in Hong Kong's low taxcolony's attractiveness to overseas

The government now is debating different revenue-boosting measures to relieve a budget deficit now in its third consecutive year. Income fell short of expenditure by 3.5 billion Hong Kong dollars ($448 million) in the financial year 1982-1983, and by 2.99 billion dol-lars in 1983-1984.

Financial Secretary Sir John Bremridge has said the 1984-85 shortfall will not reach the original estimate of 2.1 billion dollars, but he would not be more specific. does not intend to resort to more borrowing from the capital market. This year's bond issue was the first such borrowing since 1975.

Sir John seems to favor tax solu-tions over borrowing. This year, he raised taxes on salaries and profits by 2 points to 17 percent and 18.5 percent respectively. It was the first tax increase in 18 years and many financiers worried that it signaled an end to a policy of minimal government intervention that was a key to Hong Kong's economic suc-

Advances led declines, 935-522, among the 1,935 issues traded. The five-hour volume fell about 46.03 million shares from 69.62 million in the same period Friday. Analysts said the low volume was due to the semi-holiday, with many banks and the Federal Reserve closed for Veterans Day. While prices in tables on these pages are from the 4 P.M. close in New York, for reasons of time this news account is based on information gathered earlier in the day. Michael Metz of Oppenheimer Co. pointed out that many state offices were closed, curtailing activity in some pension funds.

Mr. Metz said aside from the holiday-like atmosphere, many large institutional investors were on the sidelines due to a lack of conviction about the future of the economy including the trends for interest rates and inflation. "Until there's some better external visibility. there is no urgency to become more exposed to the market," Mr. Metz said. A Standard & Poor's Corp. publication said the stock market is likely to have trouble making gains between now and the end of the year.

"Even a cut in the discount rate by the Federal Reserve will not have any great impact on the market because interest rates probably have run their course," said Aruic Kaufman, editor of The Outlook.

The market's year-end performance is usually boosted by increased investment funds from extra dividends, bonuses and the like, as well as a general sense of optimism about the new year, according to the publication.

"While the president's policies may continue to be effective in keeping down inflation and interest rates over the near term, recession worries are spreading," Mr. Kanfman said. Even without a recession, "the outlook for corporate profits next year are, to say the least, uninspiring," he said.

Market watchers recalled that when Mr. Reaean was first elected four years ago, stocks had a rise and fall similar to what happened last week. Four years ago, the week after the election saw a gain of more than 50 points in the Dow indus-

tech companies are taking a beating Few are making money, some have been bailed out by govern-ments or private investors and stock prices of technology companies have plummeted.

Earlier this month, Orcatech Inc. filed a proposal for protection from creditors under the Bankruptcy Act. The company, which makes graphics terminals for computer-aided design and manufacturing, lost 8 million Canadian dollars ($6.07 million) on sales of 4.7 miltion dollars for the year ended July

Two of its three founders resigned. Friday, Orcatech closed at 12 cents a share on the Toronto Stock Exchange, down from a 1984 high of 8.25 dollars.

Canadian UAW Backs 3-Year Ford Contract

TORONTO — Members of the United Auto Workers union at nine Ford Motor Co. of Canada assembly plants overwhelmingly ratified a three-year contract, the union said Monday.

Union members voted Sunday 82.7 percent in favor of accepting the contract, which taises workers' average hourly wage 15 percent to 15.60 Canadian dollars ($12) by 1987 from 13.08 dollars. trouble. The company says its technique is "ahead of its time," but it

A NEW INTERNATIONAL NAME. THE SAME EXPERTISE WORLDWIDE

On January 1st, 1985 a new name goes up over the door of many bank buildings throughout Africa, Asia and the Middle East.

On that day, The Standard Bank and The Chartered Bank formally adopt the name of their parent group-Standard Chartered.

The new name over the door simply underlines the fact that Standard Chartered gives you immediate access to one of the largest integrated branch networks in the world-over 2,000 branches, in more than 60 countries.

And it's intended to serve as a reminder that dealing with Standard Chartered offers international customers some very tangible benefits-including faster and more efficient cash transmission, more competitive currency dealing on a 24-hour-a-day basis, and a knowledge of world markets, contacts and opportunities based on nearly 130 years of specialisation in international trade.

We can assure you that one thing won't change.

And if you already deal with Standard Chartered you'll know just what that assurance can mean, in helping you to do overseas business with fewer problems and higher profits.

If, on the other hand, you haven't yet discovered the Standard Chartered difference, there'll never be a better time to do so than now.

Because we know that having a new name is not enough, unless we earn one as well.

Diplomats Say China, With Record Harvest, Ending U.S. Grain Pact

Reners

BEIJING — China's agreement with the United States to purchase guaranteed quantities of grain has been effectively ended, diplomats said Monday.

They cited China's expectation of a record 400-million metric ton harvest this yearand retaliatory moves by Beijing against U.S. action reducing U.S. imports of Chinese textiles.

Under an agreement between the United States and China reached in 1981, China was due to import a total of 8.2 million tons over 1983 and 1984. But according to U.S. statistics, China has so far only bought 4.3 million tons in this period, with less than two months to go before the end of the year.

Despite an assurance from a foreign trade ministry spokesman in Beijing that talks with Washington over grain imports are continuing other Chinese officials indicated that the import level required by China under the pact would not be met.

level required by China under the pact would not be met.

China's increasing ability to feed its one billion people will also affect Australia and Canada, the other major grain suppliers. The diplomats said that China might renegotiate its pacts with Australia and Canada to secure a lower import quota, while using exported U.S. grain to top up import requirements.

According to the China news agency, the country will gradually cut imports following a succession of good harvests and has shelved plans for several grain unloading berths to be constructed.

studien der es us em e tuckent fore Why sponsors of major projects retain The Morgan Bank as export-import finance advisor

Most of the world's major projects, from giant energy plants to mass transit systems, require large amounts of equipment, materials, and engineering and construction services from sources around the world.

Arranging for the best possible financing of these goods and services—which can come from competing sources—is vital to a project's success. That's where help from an experienced export-import financial advisor can make the difference.

The Morgan Bank has a long history of successfully negotiating financing for projects worldwide. Whether serving a government, government agency, or corporation, we deal knowledgeably with suppliers, their banks, and official export credit agencies so that sponsors will obtain the lowest interest rates, the longest repayment periods, and the best terms and conditions.

When a client retains Morgan's Multisource

Export Finance Group as financial advisor, here are some of the assignments we take on.

☐ We assist in the preparation of the financial section of the bid documents.

☐ We analyze all bids in all currencies and reduce them to a common currency for comparability.

☐ We use a proven computer model to calculate present values and internal rates of return relative to contract prices, interest rates, currency alternatives, grace periods, repayment periods, and fees.

☐ We help design and conduct a negotiated bid process.

☐ We advise on structuring currency swaps, interest rate swaps, long-dated forward exchange contracts, currency options, and delayed rate setting alternatives to minimize risk and reduce all-in borrowing costs.

☐ We help negotiate loan documentation to achieve simplicity and commonality when there are lenders from different countries.

☐ We help implement the client's financial plan by setting up disbursement procedures, letters of credit, and money transfer arrangements so that all funds are received and disbursed in a timely fashion.

Landsvirkjun, Iceland's national power company, retained Morgan to advise on the electromechanical works of its $120 million Blanda hydroelectric power project—with over 100 separate bidders. Others that have appointed us recently include an Asian country's mass transit system, a national airline in Europe, a multinational petroleum company, a U.S. city's transportation authority.

To discuss how we can help you on a major project, talk to the Morgan banker who calls on you, or George D. Cashman, Vice President, Multisource Export Finance, Morgan Guaranty Trust Company, 23 Wall Street, New York, NY 10015.

Currency Black Market United Press International
TEL AVIV — Israel cracked

down on black market money dealers on Monday to stem the flight from the shekel to the U.S. dollar and other hard currencies.

The ban on trading in foreign currencies outside banks will also be enforced in Arab East Jerusalem, annexed by Israel after the 1967 Middle East War, Israel Radio said. Offenders face penaltics of the table to the said of of up to three years in jail and fines of up to 2 million shekel ($3,795). Activity in the currency black markets has increased since the July 23 national elections spurred by fears of drastic economic measures and massive devaluation of the shekel, the Israeli currency.

Adjustable Rate Extendible Notes, Series A

The Notes will be repayable on February 5, 1985, or, if the date for repayment is extended to a Subsequent Repayment Date, on such Subsequent Repayment Date. Each Subsequent Repayment Date must be a date three, six or nine months or one through nine years following February 5, 1985 or the last Subsequent Repayment Date, as the case may be, and prior to November 1, 1994.

The annual interest rate on the Notes through February 5, 1985 will be subject to weekly adjustment on the calendar day following each auction of 91-day Treasury bills, and will be equal to 50 basis points above the 91-day Treasury bill auction rate (expressed on a bond equivalent basis). Thereafter, the interest rate on the Notes for each Extension Period will be designated by New Zealand.

EAGLE AGAINST THE SUN

By Ronald H. Spector. Illustrated. 561 pp. $24.95.

The Free Press-Macmillan, 866 Third Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022.

Reviewed by Drew Middleton

A NOTHER book about the war in the Pa-cific? Yes, and in my opinion the best one-volume history of that complex conflict. There are other good books on that war; but no other presents as balanced a view or provides such terse and searching analyses not only of the great battles but of half-forgotten aspects, such as the impact of blacks and female participants on the American services.

Spector's final judgment strikes home: "Su-perior American industrial power and organizational ability" were the primary factors in the defeat of Japan. Certainly there were gifted admirals and generals in command and thousands of brave and resourceful officers and soldiers. But in the end it was the ability to produce hundreds of ships, mountains of ianks, and thousands of aircraft that counted. The book explores areas of the war that other historians have left relatively untouched There are two very fine chapters on the American and Japanese states of mind as the nations moved inexorably toward Pearl Harbor. Spector's analyses of the prewar army and navy are admirable. So are his well-researched trenchant comments on the coming of WACs and blacks into the Pacific theater. There are omissions. I do not think the book ves sufficient weight to the British defeat of the Japanese pear the India-Burma border towns of Kohima and Imphal. And should there not have been more extensive treatment of the bitter battle waged by Philippine guerrillas between 1942 and the eventual recapture of the islands?

Another omission, for which I am sure Spector is not to blame, is maps. The flow of action at Midway and the invasions of Iwo Jima and Okinawa are brilliantly told. But where are the maps of these and other actions to guide the

The book will serve as a corrective to those who extol Douglas MacArthur as the greatest general of the Second World War R the exposes the weakness and corrupting of Chiang Kai-shek's government and the total ity of Franklin D. Roosevelt and most of the exponence that Nationalists is a proposite that Nationalists. advisers to recognize that Nationalist Chies should not have been considered a major and tary factor in the war.

The Pacific campaigns, unlike those in En-rope, were the scene of persistent and, in some cases, damaging conflicts between the naw and the army, including the fledgling air force Spector is objective but penetrating on what the air force could and could not do. For example, its early record on bombing Japanese warships was wildly exaggerated.

But the author gives the air force full croin for the fearfully effective firebomb raids on Tokyo and other cities, raids that demonstraed the effectiveness of the B-29 bombers and the skill of their crews.

One of the most fascinating sections of "Ea gle Against the Sun deals with the plans for the invasion of the Japanese home islands that would follow Okinawa. The Okinawa battle cost the lives of 7,000 soldiers and marines and nearly 5,000 sailors. Another 5,000 sailors were wounded, largely by kamikaze attacks. The total was the highest ever suffered by the navy.

Against that somber background the force prepared for the invasion of Kyushu Island. The estimate was that of the 767,000 men to be employed, casualties would amount to approx imately 268,000 dead and wounded

The author treats with care and respect the continuing debate over whether Japan would have surrendered without invasion or atomic attack. His comment is, "Whether Japan would have been eventually forced to surren der by sheer exhaustion can never be proved or disproved conclusively. Yet it is hard to see how a long-continued aerial bombardment of Japan could have cost fewer lives than the two atomic bombs.

This exemplifies the clear thinking that is one of the book's great merits. No luture book on the Pacific war will be written without paying due tribute to "Eagle Against the Sun."

Players May Ask for End to Free-Agent Draft

New York Times Service the 56 players who were in last week's free-agent draft were selected by fewer than 4 teams, which means they can negotiate with all 28 major-league baseball teams.

By Murray Chass

Some people, primarily on the players' side but also some among the owners, believe it's time to elim-inate the draft and allow all teams to negotiate with all free agents. In the first five years of the draft, there were limits on the number of clubs that could select negotiating rights to a player, but the only way clubs are limited now is that they must select a player at the draft if they want to be sure to have the right to negotiate with him.
"One of the things we expect to

"I'm tired of the 'there-he-isagain' story," said Brand, 45, who consolidated his status as a Hawkeye for trend-watchers during the appearance of 16 editions of his "Whole Earth Catalog," which has sold 2.5 million copies since 1968 and in 1972 won him a National Book Award. He continued: "It's 'Oh look,

It is a time of equanimity for Stewart Brand. "I was always ex-pecting to be in prison, or sick, or dead — and I'm not," said the man whose portrait as a '60s counterculture outlaw and gentle provocateur was painted by the writer Tom Wolfe in his bestselling book, "The Electric Kool-Aid Acid Test."

The inner dialogue over materialism, he said, continues for him and for many others whose ideology took root in the '60s culture. "It's as if there's an angel and a devil on their shoulders," he explained. "One is saying Go get stoned, and the other is saying 'Double your income.'

He paused in thought, this man who gave away $20,000 in $100 bills at a party in 1971 to share the profits from "The Last Whole Earth Catalog." The slogan car-ried by the book's Phoenix-like next edition cautioned: "Stay hungry. Stay foolish."

"I'm not particularly hungry." he said, the blue eyes scouting something a good way from E Dock. "But we can find a way to get hungry again."
